

Finance in the Post-Pandemic World

Three Observations on the State and Future of Work in Finance Organizations

By: Eva van de Grijn, Solution Architect, Serrala

As originally published in the Credit Research Foundation's publication, Perspective by CRF (Q2 2021)

The pandemic has forced finance organizations around the globe to implement completely new ways of working to ensure business continuity in a climate of extreme uncertainty. Companies had to quickly respond to unforeseen and suddenly changing circumstances that impacted virtually every global business in one way or the other. In many ways COVID-19 has accelerated developments in finance organizations that otherwise would have taken years, if not decades, to unfold. Now the question is: What does this mean for finance in a post-pandemic world?

As the world economy is starting to reset after the global pandemic, it becomes increasingly clear that back to normal does not mean back to pre-COVID. In many ways, the worldwide changes have been so drastic that...

This article is only available to members of the Credit Research Foundation (CRF).

Interested in reading more? Join CRF to gain access to this and hundreds of other resources! CLICK HERE for membership information.

About the Author

Eva van der Grijn is a Solution Architect supporting automation of the end-to-end O2C processes. Working for a number of large Tech Companies both in the Netherland and the UK over the past 20 years, she has strong knowledge in the O2C arena with main focus on credit risk analytics and collateral management.